

Al Burruss

AL Burruss, of Marietta, Georgia majority leader of the state House of Representatives, died of cancer of the pancreas Saturday at Kennestone Hospital. He was 58. Burruss had entered Kennestone Hospital for exploratory surgery March 10 after experiencing unusual pain during the 1986 legislative session, said his wife, Bobbi Elrod Burruss of Marietta. During the surgery, cancer was discovered. Burruss' wife was beside him when he died at 7 a.m., a hospital spokeswoman said. He had been resting comfortably, she said. The funeral will be at 2 p.m. Monday at Marietta First United Methodist Church with burial at Kennesaw Memorial Park Cemetery. Burruss was the House majority leader, or the ranking Democrat, from 1982 until his death. He had been speaker pro tem from 1973-76 and majority whip in 1981-82. He served one term on the Cobb County Commission, from 1964 to 1968, and nine terms in the state House of Representatives, from 1969 until his death. Burruss' victories reflected his strong popularity in Cobb, despite its swing to Republicanism in recent years. He was an immense success in business, too, as principal owner of Tip Top Poultry Inc., a Marietta chicken company with 400 employees processing 4,200 hens and roosters an hour and 1985 sales of $25 million, said minority partner Chet Austin. Burruss also was a major stockholder in Gem City Poultry Transport, Poultry Specialists and a Pontiac dealership in Cornelia. But despite his political power and wealth, Burruss was an unusually self-effacing, personable man and one of the most accessible legislators, state officials said. Burruss liked calling himself "a simple chicken plucker," and he frequently gave away his Tip Top Poultry chicken to needy families, Monnie Sellers, administrative assistant to the House Ways and Means Committee, said. "There is a story told about Al that he gave away so much chicken out of his share of the company profits that it became necessary for management to take the freezer key away from him," she said. Members of families whom Burruss had helped at various times visited him at the hospital earlier this year "by the thousands," Mrs. Sellers said. Burruss was a certified lay speaker of the United Methodist Church, said the Rev. Comer Brownlow, associate pastor of First United Methodist Church of Marietta, where Burruss also was an administrative board member. The legislator had worked as a school janitor while attending Smyrna High School. He "never forgot what he came from," said his wife. After becoming financially independent, Burruss kept running for public office "because it was a way to help people," she said. His accessibility at the state Capitol made Burruss a well-liked legislator. "Al spends a giant portion of his time helping anyone who seeks his counsel," four state representatives wrote in a March 19 letter to Frederick Allen, political editor of The Atlanta Journal and The Atlanta Constitution. The four are Tom Crosby, Bill Dover, Tom Kilgore and Roger Williams. "Members of the House . . . flock to his side for technical and political advice in drawing bills and amendments," the four wrote. "Al is never too busy to help any person." Burruss "seemed to have eight days a week, while others only had seven," his wife recalled. Despite the demands of his business and political life, he rose early each morning and cooked breakfast for his children. "That was his special time with them," Mrs. Burruss said. His desk in the House chamber was on the second row, but he rarely sat there. Instead, Burruss stood, sat on the floor, or kneeled, trying to alleviate pain caused by arthritis, said Mrs. Burruss. An emotional man, Burruss wept before his colleagues at least twice, in 1971 after failing to gain an appointment as state transportation commissioner, and in 1973 after his election as speaker pro tem. Few other Georgians had as much influence as Burruss in shaping recent state budgets, according to state leaders and reporters covering the state Capitol. In addition to

-serving as majority leader in the House, where spending bills begin, Burruss sat on the budget committee and the House-Senate budget conference committee. In a 1986 straw poll of legislators, he was voted the House's "best negotiator." Burruss also was a member of two history-making groups. The first was the 1978-82 Select Committee on Constitutional Revision, which wrote a new state constitution adopted by voters in 1983. And he was one of the members of the 1984-85 Educational Review Commission, which studied options prior to the passage of Gov. Joe Frank Harris' landmark Quality Basic Education Act in 1985. A.L. Burruss was born July 3, 1927, in the Hopewell community in north Forsyth County. He was the oldest of 11 children of Chess and Eula Burruss. His mother named him for his grandfathers, men named Alfred and Luther. But she disliked both names, and gave him only the initials. Later, an employer dubbed him "Al." His family moved to Smyrna when he was 7 or 8, and his father got a job as a painter and carpenter. As Smyrna High student-janitor, one of Burruss' jobs was to start the furnace on winter mornings. He also was a mail clerk at the Bell Bomber Plant in Marietta. He graduated from high school in 1944. His military record helped shape his future success. Burruss was in boot camp as the war ended. Later, he was stationed in the Philippines, and still later attended a stateside school that won his promotion to the rank of refrigeration machinist mate. Discharged and back home, Burruss started a refrigeration business. Tip Top Poultry was one of his clients. In about 1950, when Tip Top's owners decided to sell, Burruss bought out one of two partners, and was later joined by Austin, his boyhood friend. In 1962, Burruss was the Kennesaw Mountain Jaycees' "young man of the year." Two years later, Burruss was elected to a seat on Cobb County's new multimember commission. Later, an angry constituent called the Burruss home while he was away. The caller said there wasn't "a teacup full of brains" in all five commissioners' heads, according to newspaper columnist Celestine Sibley. Mrs. Burruss answered the phone, and rose to the defense of her husband, neglecting a food dish cooking on the stove. The kitchen caught fire, resulting in $4,000 worth of damage. Burruss also had to rebuild in 1976, when his political career suffered serious damage. Then speaker pro tem, Burruss challenged incumbent House Speaker Tom Murphy in a bid for Murphy's post. Needing 76 votes to win, he had "86 blood oaths," Burruss recalled. But he lost, 98-58. Afterward, he was stripped of his important committee assignments. During the next six years, Burruss slowly regained power. Once he had been Murphy's principal challenger; now he became one of the speaker's principal allies. Burruss was a former president of the Georgia Poultry Federation, the Southeastern Poultry and Egg Association, and the Marietta Western Little League. He was a former member of the Southern Tech Foundation and Kennestone Hospital Authority, and also belonged to the Cobb Chamber of Commerce and the Aircraft Owners and Pilots Association. The Marietta Daily Journal named Burruss "Cobb County citizen of the year" in 1983, and the Cobb Bar Association presented him its "Liberty Bell Award" in 1986. He belonged to the Kennesaw College Foundation and was an honorary alumnus of the school. Surviving in addition to his wife are a son, Robin Burruss of Marietta; a daughter, Renee Burruss-Davis of Marietta; four brothers, Jimmy Burruss of Marietta, Dan Burruss of Avondale Estates, and Buddy and Gerald Burruss, both of Smyrna; five sisters, Linda Moore of Sandy Springs, and Sarah Dunn, Betty Brown, Peggy Hulseley and Jane Ragan, all of Smyrna; and three grandchildren. Beatrice Burruss

Beatrice Burruss of Harrisburg, passed away suddenly on Sunday, August 20, 2006, at the beautiful age of 91 years old. She was affectionately named Mom Bea by her DaySpring Ministries congregation. Mom Bea was born in Sumter, South Carolina, the daughter of the late Ernest and Laura Robinson. She graduated from the former John Harris Senior High School in 1933. She relocated to New York where she landed a job with S. H. Kress Company. She became the first African American manager in the history of the company and later retired with 36 years of service. Mom was the widow of Jordan U. Burruss (AKA "Buss"). He was the apple of her eye, she fondly reminisced the morning of her passing. Mom did not suffer - she just slipped into her eternal home, not made with human hands. She beheld the Masters face that Sunday evening. Mom will spend her first Christmas with Jesus this year! We will miss her at our Christmas celebration, but we know that one day in the future those in Christ will be reunited. Mom leaves to celebrate her life: two sisters, Blanche Robinson and Alice Bricker; a brother, Maynard Robinson; and a host of nieces, nephews, cousins, and friends. Also close to her were Jackie Lawson, Angie, Brian, Janette, Jordan, and Jason Jones, Craig Richardson, Donna Barber, Debbie Richardson, Dawn Carter, Kevin Belle, Derrick and Jeannie Talbert, Trudy Wilson, the golden girls; and a host of spiritual sons and daughters. A memorial service celebration to honor her life will be held on Wednesday, September 6, 2006, at 7 p.m., at DaySpring Ministries, 1600 Spring Garden Drive in Middletown. What a God-honoring celebration it will be! www.pennlive.com/obits Published in the Patriot-News on 9/1/2006.

George Lewis Burruss

A inquest was conducted by Deputy Coroner Klunk Sunday morning at his funeral home at which a verdict of suicide was returned in the death of George Louis Burruss, 35, who shot himself early Saturday October 27, 1934, at his cottage in Piasa Chautauqua where he had been employed for the lost four years. It was testified that he had been nervous and despondent. Statements by his widow, Mrs. Claudia Burruss, and his daughter, Kitty B., 11, were that immediately after breakfast, Burruss had returned to his bedroom saying he would lie down and rest for a time, thinking he would "feel better." A few minutes later there was an explosive report. They thought at first that the stove had exploded, but finding the stove intact they traced the sound to the bedroom where Burruss was found wounded on his bed, a pistol still gripped in his hand. Burruss' body was taken Saturday afternoon to his old home new Carrollton, and funeral services were to be held.

Harris D. Burruss

Date: 1887-12-24; Paper: Baltimore Sun

Sudden Death of Harris D. Burruss - West Point, Va, December 23, 1887 Harris D. Burruss a well known citizen of King William County, fell dead yesterday evening. He seemed in his usual health, and had been with a party of gentlemen hunting all day. About nightfall the party returned to the residence of William M. Garry, and were sitting in his parlor planning today's hunt when Mr. Burruss fell from a sofa on which he was reclining and expired without a word. Before the war, Mr. Burruss was doorkeeper of the House of Delegates for several terms. Since the war he has been deputy treasurer of the county, but was left out when the republicans carried the county last spring. Business is still very brisk at the dock here. Three steamships are loading with cotton, and both compresses are working night and day.

Ida Burruss Wroten,

a longtime educator in Baltimore city schools, died Tuesday of heart failure at Saint Agnes Nursing and Rehabilitation Center in Ellicott City. She was 93. Born in Baltimore, she spent her childhood in Virginia and Pennsylvania, graduating from high school in Kennett Square, Pa., in 1927. She returned to Baltimore to attend Morgan State College and graduated in 1931. From 1932 to 1935, she worked as an assistant registrar at her alma mater. She later was employed as a secretary in the Baltimore city school system. In 1939, she married Thomas Wroten, who predeceased her. The couple had no children. At the end of World War II, Mrs. Wroten took a teaching job at Carver Vocational-Technical High School, where she spent most of her teaching career until her retirement 25 years later. In 1952, Mrs. Wroten earned a master's degree in business education from New York University; that was her concentration for the rest of her teaching career. Teaching by day and night in city schools, Mrs. Wroten also helped place her students in jobs. She guided young people outside the classroom as well, serving as the youth director of the Baltimore NAACP for several years. Mrs. Wroten also belonged to Zeta Phi Beta, a public service organization, and Lambda Kappa Mu, a business and professional women's sorority. A volunteer task she especially enjoyed was administering a Morgan State Class of 1931 Scholarship Fund in the name of classmate Dr. G. Franklin Phillips. A Christian Scientist who read the Bible every day, she was a woman of great faith, friends said. Pinochle and travel were her hobbies. Mrs. Wroten traveled throughout the United States, South America and Europe, shooting slides and movies wherever she went. She was known for her remarkable memory, said a close friend and sorority sister, Magdalene B. Fennell of Baltimore. Mrs. Wroten is survived by four cousins. Services will be held at 11 a.m. tomorrow at 11 a.m. at Nutter Funeral Home, 2501 Gwynns Falls Parkway. Baltimore Sun,

Joseph Franklin Burruss

Joe Frank Burruss - His old Miami friends heard with sorrow, Thursday of last week, that a former loved citizen of our county, Joe Frank Burruss, of near Carrollton, had answered the summons to come up higher, at the age of 75 years. Mr. Burruss died at his home near Carrollton at 11:15 p.m. Wednesday, March 10, 1920 after a long illness from cancer. Rev. George L. Bush, pastor of the Carrollton Christian church, of which Mr. Burruss was a faithful member, conducted a service at the home at eight o'clock Friday morning, and the funeral party took the morning Wabash train to Miami, arriving at our cemetery about eleven o'clock. Here Rev. Bush conducted another short service and the body was laid to rest in the Burruss lot. Joe Frank Burruss was born near Carrollton, Ill., in September, 1845, and came with his parents to Saline county when a small boy. Here he grew to manhood and here he made his home and built the splendid life which is his children's best heritage living near Miami until about thirteen years ago, when he removed with his family to a farm four miles north of Carrollton. He was married to Miss Flora Parsons, of this township, many years ago, and their union was blessed with a family of ten children, five sons, John P., of Carroll county, Joe Frank, of Marshall, Sewell, of Grand Pass, George, of Richmond, Cal., and Merrill, at home, and five daughters, Mrs. J.W. Weir, Richmond, Cal., Mrs. C. S. Pugsley, Kansas City, Mrs. R.C. Farr, Carrollton, Mrs. Francis Trotter, of Kansas, and Miss Lucy Burruss, at home. The home life of this family has always been a beautiful thing and is the finest possible tribute to the sterling character of the father and mother as homemakers. Mr. Burruss had been for years a member of the Christian church, and was a man of fine principles and positive convictions, who left his impression for good on the neighborhood in which he lived, and who will be remembered by those whose lives he touched. Besides the widow and children, he is survived by two sisters, Mrs. J.D. Fristoe, of near Carrollton, and Mrs. Mary Harvey of St. Paul, Minn., and two brothers, D.N. Burruss, of St. Louis, and John Burruss, of Carroll county. A large circle of relatives and a host of friends mourn the loss of this good man.

John Burruss

DIED, aged 32, on the 26th day April last, at his father's in Bedford county, Virginia, on Goose creek. Mr. John Burrowes, in the 32nd year of his age, after enduring severe pain for near two months, caused by the cut of an axe on the inside of his knee. This unfortunate cut divided an important artery, producing great loss of blood, and then causing sudden death. The surgical aid of Dr. Foot was procured, who applied a styptic, and prevented the further loss of blood. Hopes were then entertained of his recovery. But from the corroding nature of the application (as is supposed) the artery and flesh became putrid and amputation was thought the only means to save life. This having done, hopes were for a while again entertained of his recovery. But from the putrid nature of the artery, notwithstanding the great exertions of his physicians, it bursted several times, and finally he bled to death; leaving a numerous family of , and friends to morn his loss, - by those that best knew the deceased he was most highly esteemed for his benevolence, industry and honesty. Thus died John Burrowes, cut suddenly off in the prime and vigor of life. May his friends prepare to follow! (April 26, 1832)

Llewlyn Burruss

Date: July 29, 1907 - Virginia - Paper: Richmond Times Dispatch Two months ago Llewellyn Burruss, a former employee of the city, disappeared and he had not been seen or heard of since until at 11 o'clock yesterday morning his dead body was discovered in the last stages of decomposition in a front room of the house at 703 North Sixth Street. The police and Coroner Taylor were at once notified of the finding of the remains, which were practically unrecognizable informed Joseph Burruss, brother of the dead man. Dead Two Months - After viewing the body Coroner Taylor deemed an inquest unnecessary as death seemed to have resulted from natural causes. Undertaker Biley took charge of the remains the funeral was held in Riverview Cemetery at 6 o'clock in the evening. Reb George H. Spooner conducting the ceremonies. Dr. Taylor stated last night that he thought the man had been dead two months or ever since his disappearance. he was found lying face downward a short distance from the door. Burruss had evidently been making his way to the bed when he fell to rise no more. He was said to have been a man of rather intemperate habits and the presumption is that death was due directly or indirectly to continued intoxication.Up to May 30th, the date of his disappearance Burruss had boarded with his brother Joseph Burruss at 415 North Seventh Street where Mrs. Robert Millikin a sister of the dead man's wife, has her residence. Llewellyn Burruss it was said was so intemperate there that he was asked to move to another place. he went to the house where his body was found and his brother paid the rent two months rent for a dead man. His wife died about six years ago. There were no children. He is survived by the brother here and another living elsewhere.

Mary V. Burruss

Central City, Nebraska -- Mary V. Burruss, 103, of Central City, formerly of Clarks, died Saturday, April 28, 2007, at Litzenberg Memorial County Hospital in Central City. Services will be at 1:30 p.m. Tuesday at the United Methodist Church in Clarks, with the Rev. Ray Norris officiating. Burial will be in the Clarks Cemetery. Visitation will be from 6 to 8 p.m. Monday at Solt Funeral Home in Central City. Mrs. Burruss was born March 8, 1904, on a farm near Fairfield, Iowa, to Frank L. and Jennie C. (Dana) West. She was preceded in death by her husband, Hubert Burruss. Survivors of the immediate family include a son and daughter-in-law, Jay R. and Charlotte Burruss of Clarks. Other survivors include three grandchildren, Marty and Peggy Burruss of Clarks, Mickey and Amy Burruss of Clarks, and Ginger and Roland Husman of Chapman; and five great-grandchildren, Megan and Amanda Burruss, Brandon Burruss, and Katie and Kasie Husman. At the age of 1, she came with her parents to the farm they had purchased four miles northwest of Clarks. Mary went to rural Merrick County Schools for her early education and then graduated from Clarks High School in 1921. She then attended Kearney State Teachers College and taught school in rural Merrick County. On Dec. 24, 1923, Mary V. West and Hubert M. Burruss were united in marriage at the parsonage in Osceola, Iowa. They made their home in the Clarks area, farming for two years northeast of Clarks and then moving into Clarks, where Hubert worked at the Farmers Union Elevator Co. for four years. In March 1930, they moved to their farm one and a half miles west of Clarks. They retired from farming and raising cattle in 1965 and moved into Clarks. Hubert died on Dec. 27, 1970. Mary lived at home in Clarks until moving to Long Term Care in Central City in February of 2004. Mary was an active member of the United Methodist Church in Clarks since joining in November of 1919. She also belonged to the United Methodist Women, the Order of the Eastern Star Arbor Chapter 200, and the Past Worthy Matrons Club. Mary joined Golden Link Rebekah Lodge 381 of Clarks in January of 1927 and served in all the offices at least once, including Noble Grand in 1953. She received the Decoration of Chivalry for outstanding work in the Rebekah Degree. Through consolidations, Mary was also a member of Truth Rebekah Lodge 132 in Grand Island. The work she did with the Rebekah Lodge always brought her great enjoyment. Throughout the years, Mary belonged to many clubs and especially enjoyed the fellowship she found at the Clarks Senior Citizens. Mary enjoyed gardening, cooking, and piecing quilts, but her special love was spending time with her family. Along with her husband, she was preceded in death by her parents and one sister, Hazel Dittmer. Memorials are suggested to the United Methodist Church in Clarks.

Richard D. Burruss.

Died in Norfolk, Virginia on Sunday morning. August 10th, 1845 after a protracted and painful illness, Mr. Richard D. Burruss, in the 31st year of his age. Though the victim of that unrelenting disease, consumption yet bore his sufferings with resignation, without a murmur. To him death had lost its sting. He frequently spoke of his anticipated due with great calmness and composure, gave directions for his funeral obsequies and text from which he wished his funeral was preached. It was Hebrews IV, verse 9. The deceased was for many years a resident of Norfolk, but formerly of Richmond, Virginia. He was an exemplary member of the Prebyterian Church and an Elder in the same. He has gone to his rest to join the redeemed in Heaven. Richmond Enquirer, September 3, 1845, Page 2, Issue 144
